2nd Information Session: November 9

An Information Session will be held on Monday November 9, 2015 in the Field DEC Center Room 201 from 6:30 pm – 8:30 pm. Attend and learn about the program including why it is being referred to as the “Ideal Professional Doctorate.”

Have all questions answered by Dr. Larry M. Starr, program director. Register here: <http://events.philau.edu/event/DSLOpenHouse#.VjEcXyFNdg>. For more information about the Information Session, telephone: (215)-951-5332.

One outcome of the first Information Session was that new applications were received from 6 people who attended. Three additional people who had registered but had a sudden conflict scheduled private meetings which produced two more applications. Anyone who is interested in the Doctoral Program but is unable to attend the session is encouraged to call (215)-951-5332 or to email starrl@philau.edu for an individual meeting.

Strategic Leadership Coaches

The DSL program is supported by three coaching services: Doctoral Executive Coaching for personal and professional development; Doctoral Presentation Coaching for communicating up, down and across an organization; and Doctoral Writing Coaching to deliver written obligations and the doctoral thesis.

Leading Doctoral Executive Coaching is Dominick Volini, a clinical psychologist with three decades of experience in organizational consulting and executive coaching in the US and abroad. Students will receive individual and group assessments and feedback, and individual and group development sessions throughout their doctoral studies.

Leading Doctoral Presentation Coaching is Tom Guggino, a marketing, public relations, and communication professional. Presentation coaching includes use of technology and language (verbal and nonverbal) to convey challenging or complex topics. Students will also assess themselves by video recording their presentations.

Leading Doctoral Writing Coaching are Patricia Thatcher, Director of the University's Academic Success Center and Erin Lucas, Assistant Director of Writing Services. The mission of Doctoral Writing is to help each doctoral student to succeed independently as a writer by developing a long-term, complex skill set and to make each person a better writer for life, not merely for academic assignments and obligations.

Strategic Leadership Faculty Updates

We welcome several new DSL faculty members.

Sztandera

Les Sztandera is Professor of Computer Information Systems in Philadelphia University's Kanbar College of Design, Engineering, and Commerce where in the Innovation MBA program he teaches technical competitive intelligence, new product development, marketing research, and entrepreneurship. In DSL, Les will address the topic of big data, analytics, social computing and other technology enablers.

Cosenza

Durie

Tony Cosenza is civilian Co-director of Logistic Operations at the US Department of Defense Supply Center where he is responsible for material support to worldwide military missions and operations. Robbin Durie is Director of the Medical Electronic Catalog Program at the US Department of Defense Supply Agency, and is responsible for development and oversight of process integration strategies, system interfaces, and contract agreements for public sector commercialization of Medical Capital Equipment maintenance, logistics and support. Tony and Robbin will address leadership theory and practice across contexts – military and civilian.

Sokoloff

Harris Sokoloff is director of the University of Pennsylvania Project on Civic Engagement through which he designs and implements civic engagement projects which have direct impact on the City of Philadelphia; and director of the University of Pennsylvania Center for School Study Councils for which he works with school superintendents, school boards, and district staff to help them keep pace with state-of-the-art educational and management theory, research, and practice. Harris will teach a course in managing conflict and navigating through the “New Normal” of global organizational activities and enterprises.

Hirschhorn

Larry Hirschhorn, Principal and one of the five founders of the Center for Applied Research, is a recognized expert on the psychodynamics of organizations, and has consulted to executive teams in a broad range of industries, helping them refine their group process so they can make better decisions. Informed by his earned PhD in economics from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Larry's consulting and teaching approach are grounded in the realities of the client's business model, their interest in identifying avenues to profitable revenue, and the relationships between behavior, group dynamics and business success. For DSL, Larry will address the individual capacities and competencies of leaders.

Strategic Leadership Mentor

We are pleased to have Joel Adler join as our first Doctoral Mentor. Joel is founder and president of University Informatics Associates, Inc. (UIA) which provides IT strategy consulting services and develops custom decision support systems for a variety of industries. At the University of Pennsylvania from 1990 to 2013 Joel was Associate Director for Professional Programs in the School of Engineering and Applied Sciences, and Faculty Lead for the program of Project, Program and Portfolio Leadership in the School of Arts and Sciences. Joel will support operations research techniques (statistics and optimization) directly applied for operations & supply chain management, and information systems planning and strategy.
